Guest Coaches Program

In 2007, Head Coach Al Bagnoli and his staff instituted the "Guest Coaches Program," in which alums are selected to serve in an honorary coaching capacity for home games.

As part of the program, the selected alum attends the team's Friday walk-through at Franklin Field; addresses the team in a pre-game speech; and joins the captains at midfield for the pre-game coin toss. In addition, he stands on the sidelines throughout the game.

The program had a successful start when Gary Vura, W'83 was named honorary coach for the 2007 Yale contest, followed two weeks later when Joe Valerio, C'91 was the honorary captain for the Princeton contest.

Brian Seltzer '08 will begin his second season providing the play-by-play for the Red and Blue and Hench Murray, '66, GEd '67 enters his 27th season as the Quakers' analyst.

Interviews

Player interviews will only be conducted on Tuesdays and Wednesdays after practice, typically in the early evening. To schedule an interview, call Eric Dolan at 215-898-6129.

Credentials

Working press credentials and parking passes can be obtained by calling Eric Dolan at 215-898-6129.

Road Credentials

Working press credentials and parking passes can be obtained by calling Eric Dolan at 215-898-6129. All requests must be made at least a week prior to the scheduled game.

Print Media Seating

The Franklin Field press gate is located at the Northwest entrance (near the ticket window). Print media are seated in the North press box, which is to the left upon entering the press gate. Phones are available in the press box as well as in the Office of Athletic Communications following games. Wireless Internet access is available throughout Franklin Field. The North press box number is 215-898-6159.

Radio/TV Seating

Radio and television seating is in the South press box, located on the right side of the stadium upon entering the press gate. There are several telephone lines available for use and will be issued on a first-come, first-serve basis. All requests must be made at least one week in advance. Stations can order phone lines by calling Eric Dolan at 215-898-6129. The South press box number is 215-898-1085.

Media Parking

Parking around Franklin Field is very limited. Media members must call in advance to be put on the parking list for games or practices. Contact Eric Dolan at 215-898-6129 at least two days in advance of a game or a day prior to a practice.

Statistics

Flash statistics, play-by-play, halftime and postgame statistics are distributed in each press box. Full statistical packages will also be available in the press conference (Dunning Coaches' Center) following the game.

Television

Stations may film from the sidelines, using only minicams and remaining within the photographers' boxes on either side of the field. Per NCAA rules, absolutely no cameras are allowed in the bench areas. Those filming using cameras other than minicams must do so from the South press box. Announcers are also seated in the South press box. Sideline passes may be arranged through Eric Dolan in the Office of Athletic Communications. Stations with broadcasts originating from Franklin Field should call 215-898-6129 to order University support personnel for a telecast.

Media Luncheon

Al Bagnoli will be available, along with coaches from all the Philadelphia-area football programs, at the Philadelphia Area Football Luncheons on Wednesdays throughout the football season. The site alternates between Penn and Villanova; for a full schedule, contact Eric Dolan at 215-898-6129 or erdolan@upenn.edu.

Post-Game Interviews

Following the end of each home football game, Al Bagnoli and selected players will meet the media in the Dunning Coaches' Center which is located in the driveway next to the entrance of Franklin Field (across from the ticket office). Visiting coaches and requested players will go first in the interview room, followed by Bagnoli and the Penn players. The Penn locker room is closed to media at all times.

Media Will Call

Media Will Call for home football games is located in the Franklin Field ticket office, at the Northwest entrance of the stadium.

Historic Franklin Field

Entering its 115th season as the home of the Quakers, Franklin Field—with the Philadelphia skyline as its backdrop—is one of the most historic sporting facilities in the world. Recognized by the NCAA as the oldest stadium in the nation still operating for football games, the stadium hosts not only Penn football and the world-famous Penn Relays, but the Quakers’ field hockey, sprint football, lacrosse, and track & field teams.

The Oldest Collegiate Football Stadium

Est. 1895

The First

Just how old is Franklin Field? Consider that when the oldest ballpark in professional baseball, Fenway Park, opened in 1912, Franklin Field was already 17 years old. Wrigley Field didn’t open until 1914. The next-oldest college stadium, Harvard Stadium, opened in 1904; the oldest stadium in pro football, Soldier Field, was first used in 1924—nearly three full decades after the opening of Franklin Field.

1895

Site of the first stadium scoreboard

Stands are built at the stadium’s current location at 33rd and Spruce Streets. The stadium is opened for the Penn Relays, and football plays its first game there on Oct. 1, 1895, a 40-0 win over Swarthmore.

1899

Site of first neutral Army-Navy game

Army defeated Navy by a score of 17-5 at Franklin Field on Dec. 2, 1899 in the first neutral-site game ever played between the two storied rivals.

1903

Site of the original horseshoe

In 1903, in response to inadequate seating for big games, wooden stands in the stadium were replaced by a brick horseshoe, seating 20,000 fans and making Franklin Field the first permanent horseshoe college stadium.

The first episode of ABC's The Wide World of Sports was filmed at the Penn Relays on April 29, 1960.

1969

AstroTurf installed

In 1969, natural grass was replaced with AstroTurf and Franklin Field has had a synthetic surface ever since.

2004

SprinTurf and videoboard added

Over the past decade, renovations have included red and blue chairback seating, a new SprinTurf synthetic surface along with a new scoreboard and videoboard. The stadium's current capacity stands at 52,958.

Also Home to....

Over its 113-year history, Franklin Field, which was home to the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles from 1958-1970, has hosted football, track and field, field hockey, lacrosse, soccer, sprint football, baseball, rugby, cricket, commencements, concerts, Presidential speeches and drum corps competitions. It has hosted the NFL, CFL, USFL, Army-Navy games, and NCAA championships in men's and women's lacrosse and field hockey. More than 100,000 fans visit every April for the Penn Relays. It was the site of the Philadelphia Eagles' last NFL championship in 1960, Vince Lombardi's only NFL playoff loss, the first CFL game ever played on American soil, and it has hosted more Army-Navy games than any other existing stadium (18). Franklin Field has even been immortalized in film—scenes from the recent Hollywood blockbusters Invincible and Unbreakable were filmed there.

Penn Football and the Ivy League

While football is where it started, the Ivy League—entering its 53rd academic year of existence—is nationally recognized for its level of success absent of athletic scholarships while rigorously maintaining its self-imposed high academic standards.

The Ivy League has demonstrated a rare willingness and ability, given the current national pressures on intercollegiate success, to abide by these rules and still compete successfully in Division I.

The designation Ivy League is credited to Caswell Adams of the New York Tribune in 1937. The tag, premature of any formal agreement, was immediately adopted by the press as a foreshadowing of an Eastern Football League which, at the time, was big news to everyone except the athletic directors involved.

For years, the Ivy members already had been allied in leagues in basketball, ice hockey, baseball and swimming. Further common competition was found in the Heptagonal Games Association, which included Army and Navy, in the sports of baseball, track and field and swimming. Through these other scheduling arrangements, the Ivy athletic directors were used to dealing with each other in matters of administration or the exchange of calculated confidences.

As a result of these dealings, and through extensive presidential meetings and discussions, the first Ivy Group Agreement, addressing only football, was signed in 1945. While the 1945 statement did not address any scheduling issues, it did affirm the observance at the eight institutions of common practices in academic standards, eligibility requirements and the administration of financial aid for athletes. (These tenets are what still bind the Ivies together today and all continue to be based on the desire to secure competition with others having like philosophies.)

In February 1954, what is more commonly accepted as the founding date for the Ivy League, the Ivy Group Agreement was reissued to extend its philosophical jurisdiction to all sports and to foster, insofar as possible, intra-group competition. In layman's terms, that meant a complete round-robin schedule in football, beginning with the 1956 season. Such an agreement assuring seven spots on an eight-to-ten-game schedule to Ivy opponents required numerous concessions from each institution and marked a high point in intercollegiate cooperation. The basic intent of the original Ivy agreement was to improve and foster intercollegiate athletics while keeping the emphasis on such competition in harmony with the educational purpose of the institutions.

Editor's Note — Portions of this text appeared in the first Ivy League Football Guide in 1954 and were written by William H. McCarter, Director of Athletics at Dartmouth College from 1937-54.

Penn Football Facilities

The Jack LeFort Football Office Complex

In the summers of 2006 and 2007, the Penn football offices underwent a major renovation thanks to a gift from Robert LeFort in honor of his father, Jack LeFort, W'48. The new office complex, which included renovating conference rooms, is located in historic Weightman Hall and gives improved working space to all of the program's coaches and support staff. In addition, a large lounge was created with views overlooking Franklin Field. Space was also created to showcase Penn's football history, including photo displays of each Ivy League championship team.

Future Facilities: George A. Weiss Pavilion - Coming in March 2010!

The Weiss Pavilion will house a 21,000 square foot weight room that will be reserved exclusively for Penn athletes. Also included is a 7,600-square foot fitness center and a 4,600-square foot athletic training center. Below is an artist rendering of the future weight room's ground level (far left) and a rendering of the Pavilion's exterior when it is completed (center). Construction began in the spring of 2009 and is on pace to be completed by March 2010. The below picture of the facility's progression (far right) is from April 2009. For more information on the George A. Weiss Pavilion and other upcoming facilities, please see page 160.

Penn Football in the Media

Including two national television appearances, eight of Penn's games were televised in 2008 - a new team record.

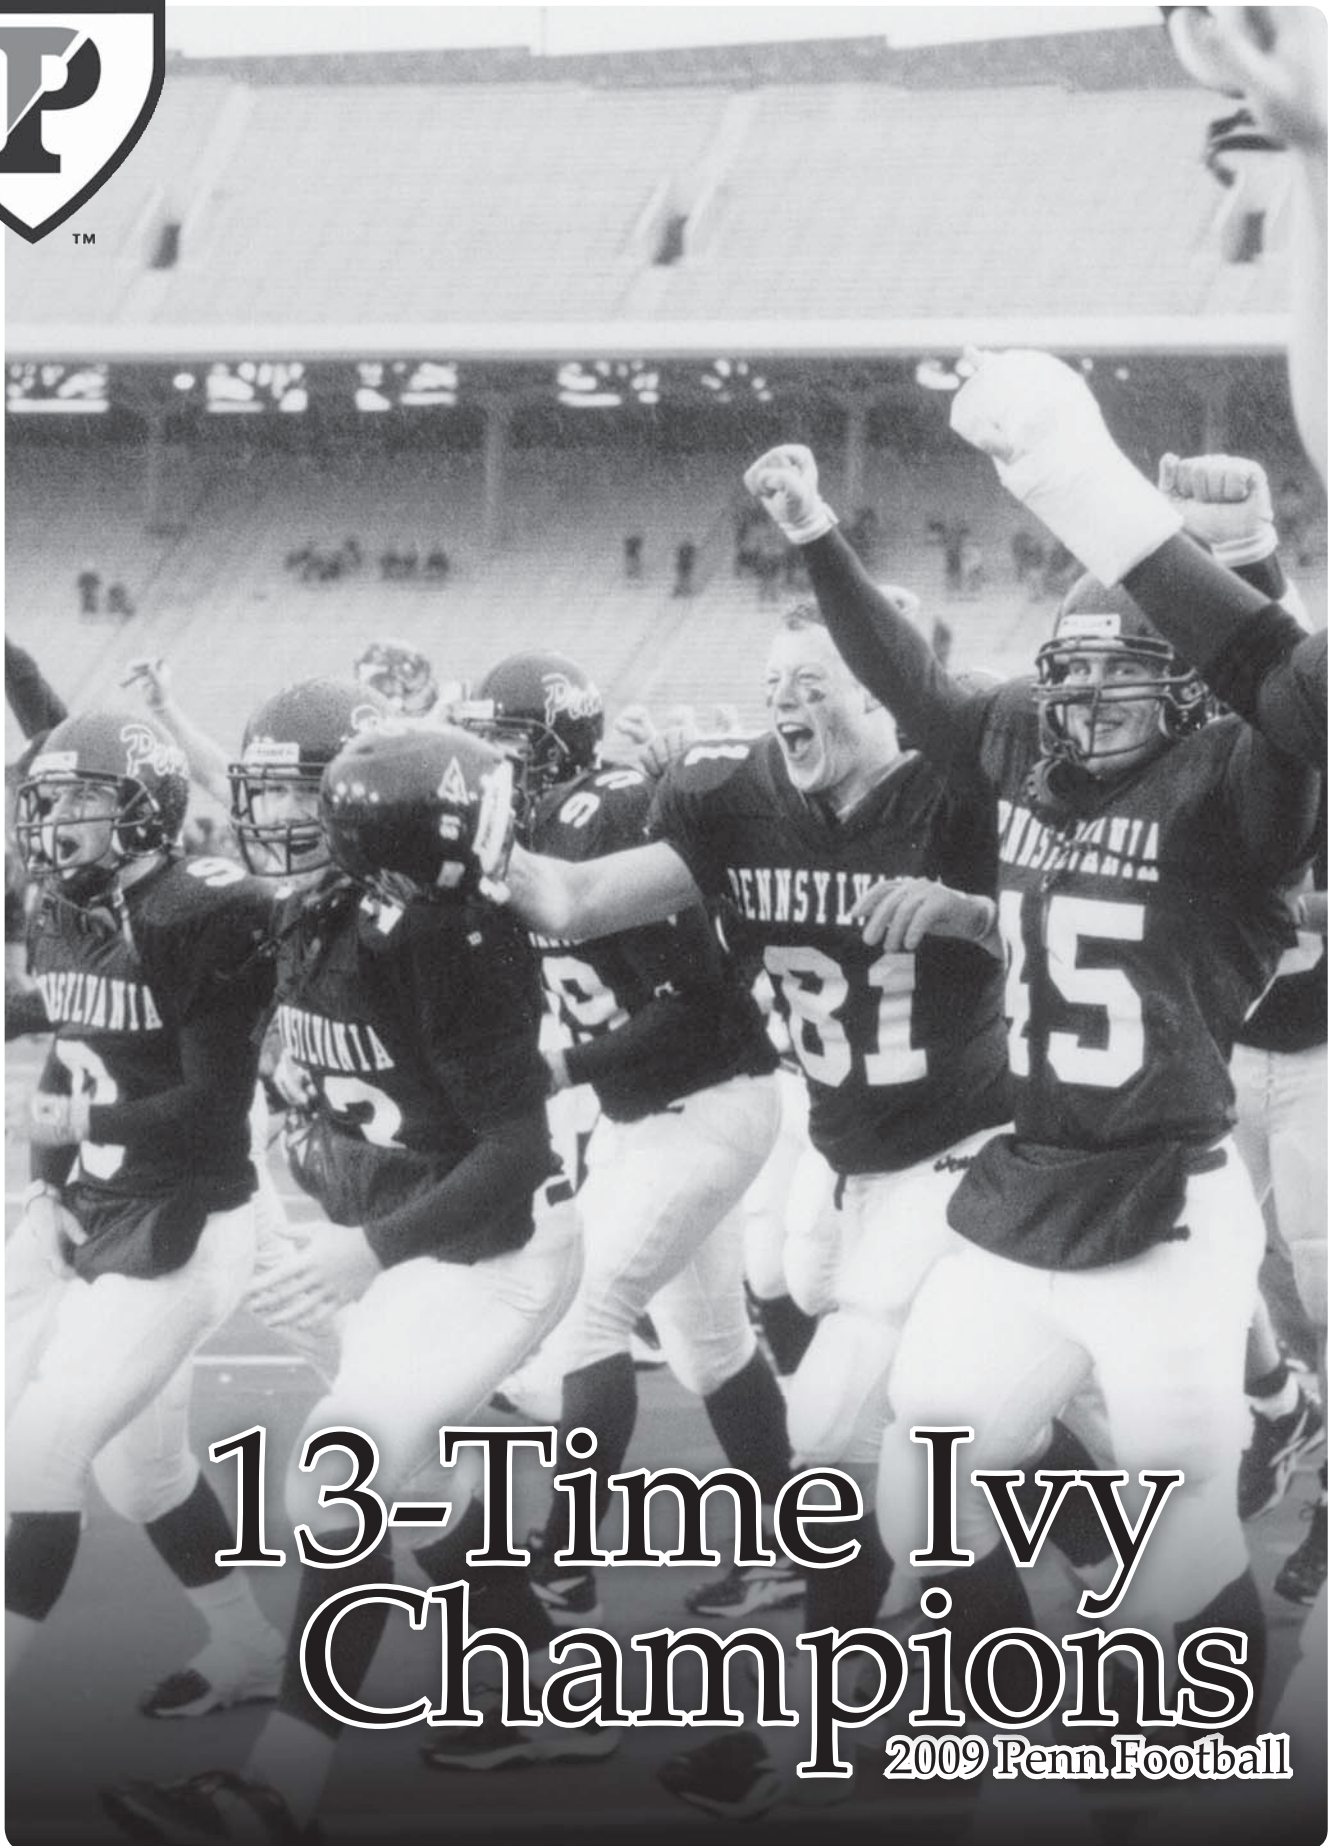

All 10 of Penn's games can be heard on WFIL 560-AM or WNTD 990-AM in the Philadelphia area and around the globe on PennAthletics.com. All five home games are also webcasted live online.

Franklin Field remains the only FCS site that ESPN's College Gameday has visited. Chris Fowler, Lee Corso (he picked the Quakers) and Kirk Herbstreit watched Penn beat Harvard for the Ivy title on Nov. 16, 2002.

WE ARE THE CHAMPIONS!

The 2009 season marks the 50th anniversary since Penn captured its first ever Ancient Eight crown in the League's fourth year of existence. Four Quakers were named first-team All-Ivy League in 1959 as the Red and Blue's seven wins were the most since going 7-0-1 in 1947. Fred Doelling led Penn in scoring, interceptions, rushing and total offense.

11.7	Yale	W	28-12
11.14	at Columbia	W	24-6
11.26	Cornell	W	28-13

"I feel so lucky to have been associated with a wonderful school, members of a great team, and the togetherness that has been shown over the years. What a team!"

- Fred Doelling (1957-59)

"I was not only impressed with the athletic abilities of the 1959 team, but man to man, they excelled in their relationships, and they became a team to be proud of. This was a great achievement and one that will always be a part of my memory."

- Assistant Coach Bernie Lemonick (1948-50)

Trailing 13-0 at the half, Barney Berlinger hauls in a 25-yard touchdown pass from George Koval to give the Quakers a 14-13 lead over Cornell in the fourth quarter.

"Coach Dan Staffieri said it best - We Will Share No More in '84! In 1982, we shared the Ivy title with Dartmouth and Harvard. In 1983, we shared with Harvard. So, it was only fitting that we would play Harvard for the outright championship in 1984. We had 38,000 fans at Franklin Field and won 38-7. It was the perfect ending to our four-year commitment to turn the program around and in many ways re-established a standard of football excellence that continues today." - Tim Chambers (1982-84)

11.12	Harvard	W	33-0
11.19	at Cornell	W	18-14

"We made a very dramatic statement. I'm not sure our players realize some of the historical things that have happened. I can't say enough about how hard it is to have one unbeaten season. It's something few teams ever do. So (a second straight undefeated season) is just remarkable. We know that sooner or later, it's going to end. That's inevitable. But right now, it's going to be later. And no one can take them out of the history books." - Head Coach Al Bagnoli

Seven-Time National Champions

National Poll Champions

During the last 132 years, there have been nearly 30 selectors of national champions using polls, historical research and mathematical rating systems. Beginning in 1936, the Associated Press began the best-known and most widely circulated poll of sportswriters and broadcasters. Before 1936, national champions were determined by historical research and retroactive ratings and polls.

1894

12-0

Penn earned its first national championship after recording the first undefeated campaign in the program's short 18-year history. The Red and Blue posted a 12-0 record under Head Coach George Woodruff. Wins included Navy, Virginia, Princeton (only the second in 30 meetings) and Harvard. The Quakers averaged 30.5 ppg while allowing just 1.6 ppg. Penn shut out all but three of its opponents.

Historic Streaks

24 - The NCAA Record (1992-95)

Little did Head Coach Al Bagnoli and his players know that, when they walked out of the tunnel against Harvard on Nov. 14, 1992 at Franklin Field, something special was about to happen. The Quakers were in their first season under Bagnoli, posting a record of 5-3 in their first eight games of the campaign. The previous weekend in Princeton, the Red and Blue fell by a touchdown. It would be the last time they would lose a game over the next two and a half seasons. Penn defeated Harvard, 21-19 and so commenced the Quakers' record Division I-AA 24-game winning streak (which still stands today and was tied by Montana in 2002). During the streak, the Quakers snapped a four-year Ivy title drought, and put together back-to-back championships for the first time since winning five straight from 1982-1986. In addition, the Red and Blue turned in the program's first perfect season since 1986 and first back-to-back perfect campaigns since 1904 and 1905.

Besting Yourself

When trying to break a previous record, it sometimes adds incentive to know that you will be taking that record away from a long-standing conference or regional rival. That was not the case in 2004 when the Penn football program eclipsed the mark for consecutive Ivy wins (17) with 20-straight League wins. Why? Because Penn was already the record holder for its performance during the 1992-95 seasons. In fact, Penn holds the top four-longest Ivy wins streaks of all-time. The Quakers moved past their previous mark on Oct. 23 with a defensive masterpiece, defeating Yale, 17-7, and holding the Bulldogs to 87 yards of offense in six minutes, six seconds of possession during the second half. This record-breaking game was indicative of Penn's defense during the entire streak, as the Quakers allowed an Ancient Eight opponent to score more than two touchdowns on only five occasions. Of the 15 opponents to score less than two touchdowns, eight managed to cross the line only once, two mustered only field goals, and three were shut out completely.
